Kindred proves its commitment - receives ISO 27001 certification

Kindred Group (previously Unibet Group) has been awarded ISO 27001 certification for information security management by testing agency, eCOGRA. By meeting the extensive criteria of the standard, Kindred Group has proven its commitment to protecting sensitive information, critical assets and consistently delivering quality service for customers and employees.

"As an online gambling group with operations spanning across the globe, we differentiate ourselves from other operators in the industry by delivering secure service for all our customers. We deal with sensitive player information and wanted to independently verify that our business processes are best in class. By achieving the ISO 27001 certification, Kindred has shown its commitment to the protection and security of customer data and has all the necessary controls in place to ensure that this strict standard is implemented across technology, people and processes", says Henrik Tjärnström, CEO of Kindred Group.

The ISO 27001:2013 Standard is a process-based approach established and updated by the International Organisation for Standardisation (ISO), the world's largest developer of international standards. By implementing and following the necessary steps to comply with this standard, organisations can identify, control, and eliminate security risks, ultimately certifying the security practices adopted within their organisation.

"The ISO 27001 certifications is a testament to Kindred Group's dedication to keeping all customer and employee information secure, ensuring integrity and always available." adds Henrik Tjärnström.
